SUPPORT THE STUDENT INTIFADA

In one of the greatest shows of solidarity to the Palestinian Liberation movement in recent years, students all across the US (and the world) set up protest encampments to demand their schools and universities divest from companies supporting Israel and to cut financial ties to the country.

Approximately 18% of the encampments resulted in the university agreeing to at least some of the students demands; however over half of the encampments were forcibly or voluntarily disbanded. Universities are now taking action to suspend, expell, and revoke the degrees of student protesters, and the Trump Administration has vowed to revoke student visas. At the time of this zine being written, several student visas have been revoked, and some students, most notably Mahmoud Khalil, have been abducted by homeland security.
